Bellmont Color Select Program

You've decided on painted finish cabinetry, yet the standard color offerings just don't match your vision...

Bellmont 1900 has the solution with its optional Color Select Paint Finish program allowing you to choose from literally thousands of colors. These colors are existing Sherwin-Williams interior latex paint color offerings, which further allow you to coordinate wall and trim finishes. And you get the same high quality factory-applied conversion varnish paint finish as used on our standard color offerings. It's simple. Pick a door style, and pick a color. Meet with your Belmont Dealer Professional for more details.

St and Sp Wood Offerings for Belmont 1900 Series

ALDER*

Native to the Pacific Northwest, Alder has fine smooth straight grain with random mineral streaks and mild color variation. Even though it is classified as a hardwood, Alder is slightly softer than woods such as Cherry or Oak; an excellent wood choice for most door styles and colors.

CHERRY

Associated with fine furniture for centuries, Cherry is an eastern grown hardwood that exhibits fine, tight grain and mild color variation. Small random pin holes or pitch pockets are common. Cherry darkens with age turning reddish brown in overall tone. Darker stains mask the color change.

MAPLE

One of the denser and harder of common cabinet woods, Maple shows tight smooth grain patterns. Common to Maple is the occasional dark mineral streak and mild color variation. Maple tends to yellow with age and light exposure. Good for light toned traditional or contemporary cabinetry.

RED OAK

Oak is known for its coarse texture, predominant contrasting grain patterns, pin knots, and overall hardness. Color variations of light brown to reddish brown are typical and show the most with light or natural finishes. Oak is a timeless American classic wood.

RIBBON MAHOGANY

Also known as Khaya, this warm toned and rich looking wood grows in the tropics of west and central Africa. The grain is relatively straight and displays an open texture. Coloring is light brown to darker brown with red overtones, and will slightly darken with age.

RUSTIC HICKORY

Probably the hardest of all typical cabinet woods, Hickory is characterized by its dramatic color variations ranging from blonde tones to dark brown. The grain is fine, but can be straight or even wavy. With its color variation and interesting grain patterns, Hickory works well for rustic designs.

QUARTER SAWN & RIFT WHITE OAK

This browner toned oak wood is known for straight open grain and light colored random flecks. Boards are cut from the log perpendicular to the growth ring creating the unique grain. This wood was used extensively in early arts and crafts or shaker-styled furniture.

SAPELE

Part of the Mahogany family of woods, Sapele is native to central Africa. It is a dense strong wood most easily recognized by its well-defined ribbon grain pattern. The medium golden brown coloring will darken with age. For best results, utilize Sapele on flat panel or shaker style doors.

WALNUT

Black American Walnut grows in the eastern states, and like Cherry, has been synonymous with fine woodworking for centuries. This darker brown wood has attractive random grain patterns. Walnut will actually lighten with age and light exposure. Walnut makes a rich timeless statement in cabinetry.

BAMBOO

Actually a grass, Bamboo is sustainably harvested from the same root stalk many times over. Only mature (5-7 year growth)

Bamboo is used for cabinet doors. Color ranges from light blonde to the caramelized honey tone. Excellent choice for Euro-Asian design and to make a strong green statement.

The Belmont Cabinetry Finishing Process

Great pride is taken in the finishing processes. The rich long-lasting finishes are a result of hand craftsmanship and state of the art automated machinery. Each step is carefully performed, resulting in a beautiful satin luster finish. Durability and low maintenance are provided by the final automated applications of our satin or matte finish conversion varnish top coats. As part of our holistic approach to the environment, we adhere to the use of eco friendly coatings applied under a strict regimen of processes.

GLAZING

Glazing is a hand rubbed application of a contrasting color that accentuates open grain profiles and door style details. This classic finish process works best with traditional detailed door styles. Due to the processes, door style, wood species, and color combinations, the final effect can run from subtle to drastic.

HEIRLOOM

If you like the look of classical painted cabinetry, and want to take it to that level of old world elegance, consider one of our Heirloom offerings. These paint colors include a subtle dry-brush style of glazing resulting in a finish synonymous with heirloom furniture. As with all of our finishes, a clear top coat of catalyzed conversion varnish is applied to maintain the finish and provide long lasting durability.

VILLA COLLECTION

An assortment of opaque stain-based colors ideal for accents or complete rooms of cabinetry. Each color is created with a base pigment and glaze combination. Due to the type of stain and application processes, the wood grain characteristics will show through. Villa is available in three levels with each level adding another hand applied detail such as sand thru and distressing.

It's an extension of our holistic approach to business. Our manufacturing facility is certified as a member of the Environmental Stewardship Program administered by the Kitchen Cabinet Manufacturers Association. As members, we are required to meet or exceed stringent criteria in:

- Control of air quality and emission levels
- Use of 3rd party certified and sustainable woods
- Use of energy efficient machinery and processes
- Management of recycling waste materials
- Participation in local and international social stewardship

We are proud to utilize Environmentally Preferred Products for our standard case construction materials. These are particleboard panel materials that are 100% recycled or reclaimed content, and meet California Air Resource Board CARB II compliance; the strictest standards for formaldehyde emissions in the world.

As a responsible builder of fine cabinetry, we have become stewards of our community, locally and beyond. We participate, physically and financially, in local outreach programs such as Habitat for Humanity and Vine Maple Place. We help build young lives with involvement in the Eagles Wings Youth Camp in Latvia. Through our association with Agros International, we sponsor and regularly send work teams to La Esperanza, a remote village in El Salvador; where we are helping build hope into the lives of families.

We view green manufacturing not as just the management and protection of our natural resources, but also the investment in the people of our company, the local community, and the world beyond.
